ULI is a nonprofit education and research organization that fosters and encourages high standards of land use planning and development. Established in 1936, ULI is recognized as one of North America's most respected and widely quoted sources of objective information on urban planning, growth, and development. The members of this panel have been selected from the ULI membership for their expertise relevant to the problems and opportunities facing this project.

The final product of the panel will include a review of best practices and policies of other large cities, the outcomes of such practices and policies, and will produce a report that lays out core principles for a locally-focused housing strategy that complies with the Voluntary Compliance Agreement and recent changes to fair housing law, and that identifies short, medium, and long-term policy options for the City, including collaboration opportunities with surrounding jurisdictions. This work product will be presented by the panelists at the March 4th meeting.
